About This Game

Bridge Constructor Playground offers people of all ages an introduction to the topic of “bridge building”. This game gives you the freedom to let your creative side run riot – nothing is impossible. Across 30 innovative levels you have to build bridges over deep valleys, canals or rivers. Following this your bridges will be subjected to a stress test to see whether they can support the weight of the cars and/or trucks which drive across them.

In comparison to the #1 hit Bridge Constructor, Bridge Constructor Playground offers an even easier entry to the game including an extensive tutorial. With no fixed budget, and next to no limitations on building materials, there are almost no limits: you can build and construct to your heart’s desire. Here you are free to do as you please and let the time fly by with creative bridge building. Experienced players will enjoy the challenges of the new badge system: for every bridge there are 5 badges to be won for which you must fulfill certain requirements. For example, building a bridge that can carry no more than a certain load limit. All of this, paired with a bright and friendly look, makes Bridge Constructor Playground an exciting and also educational experience for the whole family, offering hours of gaming fun.

If you're looking to flex your inner engineer, look no further. Seems like it was intended for mobile/tablets, as the controls almost work against it on pc. The 30 second looping jingle will probably make you want to purposely fling cars off your bridges as well. Do yourself a favor and mute it, adding your own soundtrack.

5/10 snapping cables. You want Pontifex? This is not Pontifex.

It seems like a port of a mobile game. The music is 2 tunes repeating, and the graphics are way too plastic for my eyes.

I also couldn't get onto the 1st real-game island because of the whole "get 25 badges to unlock the next stage" thing. There seems to be no limit on the moneypool, so you can build whatever, however, it will not allow you to progress unless you meet arbitrary challenges, which I couldn't be bothered with. I just don't have time for this.

Got it in the Humble Bundle and will make sure it is well hidden from my library. Developers should aim higher than this.

Edit: typos.. Pretty quick, Entry-level game into the Bridge Construction Genre. not requiring a good amount of skill, but perseverance and a little ingenuity.. I'm only here for the achievements. Go get Poly-Bridge if you are into this stuff.. A sweet little physics/bridges game to pop during free minutes. Tiny and not simple enough to make one keep going. Playground part of the title is very true to it's nature - well, you are supposed to do this-and-this but hey, nobody said you have to.. Excelent sandbox game for the engineer within us all.

My only wish is that it would use the steam cloud to save progress between multiple computers.. A nice game that you can spend time with your kid to solve puzzles. If you are able to make it pay attention for more than 10 minutes that is. >.>. 6/10 no ramps. I'm kinda-sorta on the fence on this one. Bridge Constructor Playground is a competent addition to the genre, but it is very short. So, rather than write many many words on a simple premise, I'm going to write out what I wish I'd known before going into the game:

- 1) Many of the badges are mutually exclusive, so you will need to create multiple bridges for each stage.
- 2) You don't need to run cars over bridges; if the truck makes it, it'll give you the badge for the car as well.
- 3) The storm-watcher achievement needs a special sort of non-bridge.

Bridge Construction Playground is another ClockStone's remake (first was Bridge Constructor) of old Chronic Logic's Bridge Builder.

Aim of all those game is simple - you have to build a bridge that withstands trains, cars or trucks, with resources like wood, metal bars, stone pillars and lines.

Despite being very similar to Bridge Constructor, Playground offers more flexibility. Instead of a strict caring about a budget, you can freely build any bridge in any way you like. Every level has also few tasks which requires building a bridge in some specific way - without some resources, with some strict budget or with keeping stress of the bridge under some level.

In comparision to Bridge Constructor, physics is not that hilarious as it used to be. It improved a lot. Graphically this game is bad. But it doesn't matter at all. Music is nice and not disturbing.

Playground is way less challenging than Bridge Constructor, though it is still fun.

The most annoying thing in Playground is inability to move once set joints. You literally have sometimes to delete whole bridge just because you can't move one damn joint. And it was possible in the previous version.

Also in some camera positions it is impossible either to place parts of a bridge or to delete them. You get used to it, but it is very irritating at the beginning.

And the game still lacks a speed up button.

Anyway, it's a very funny and addictive game. Not the best one of the genre of building bridges, but not bad either. But if you like the genre, it's a game just for you.. My bridge fell apart. Way too short for the price. Talking about a fourth of the time of the original game.. sad that poly bridge took this game and bumped the gfx up and they get all the credit. Hmm, i got bored easily, but i could see how it could be very addicting.. simple game, various challenges, pretty fun!
